MESSAGES FOR SENATORS PILE UP

JULIA HOGAN, Hagerstown, Md., sorts telegrams, destined for delivery to senators this morning, in Western Union's Washington headquarters. A company official said messages addressed to congressmen were arriving "by the thousands" as OPA's life ran out.

WASHINGTON, July 1 (AP)— Monday—All vestige of federal control over prices and rents expired today amid a cloud of recriminations over who killed the OPA.
President Truman blamed the Congress, and especially Sen. Taft, Ohio Republican, for the deed. Taft and Carroll Reece, chairman of the Republican National Committee, blamed the president.

Paul Porter, OPA administrator, expressed belief that he would not be long before Congress re-enacts OPA control.

But Sen. W. Lee (Pappy) O'Daniel, the Texas Democrat, promised to filibuster "all the end of time if necessary" to block Senate consideration of any extension legislation.

Meanwhile Office of Price Administration schedules of ceiling prices,
posted in business places, hotels,
restaurants, and other spots, or attached to goods for sale, have no further legal significance unless Congress chooses to re-instate the agency.

Created in 1942 during the war
to keep prices on a fairly even keel,
the OPA had weathered many political storms although it had been tossed about a bit.

OPA Meets Its Waterloo

But it met its Waterloo the past weekend.

Congress had sought to extend the Price Control act, beyond midnight, June 30. But the form in which the extension legislation
finally was delivered to President Truman was such that he rejected
it Saturday by veto as "impossible."

The House sustained his veto, and efforts to enact simple extension resolutions prior to the weekend recess of both the House and Senate failed.

Mr. Truman, who told the nation
Saturday night he vetoed the bill, blamed among other things, an amendment by Sen. Taft (R-Ohio)
as likely to increase sharply the price of goods.

Manufacturers, the president said,
would receive "a bonanza" under the Taft amendment.

"It was a cruel jest," the president added, to say that the Taft amendment would help production.

Sen. Taft got his chance at rebuttal last night in a radio broadcast.

Taft said Mr. Truman had "deliberately misrepresented" the senator's position in a long "personal attack" and declared that the president, by vetoing the OPA extension bill finally offered him, had "chosen to plunge the economy of this country into chaos."

As the nation entered its first day of business without the restraining hand of OPA to guide
its price policies, the most common talk was to a great degree, the pre-valing price bases while awaiting congressional reaction to President
Truman's plea for a "workable"
bill.

Flood of Telegrams

Taft contended the responsibility for "the ultimate and unavoidable breakdown of price control will result directly from the president's policy, not from act of Congress."

My own position and that of Congress is perfectly logical, he

British Arrest 2,000 Persons In Palestine

Four Are Killed in Operations "To Restore Law and Order"

JERUSALEM, June 30 (AP)—The British announced today that 2,000 persons were held for investigation and four persons were killed in operations begun yesterday "to restore law and order in Palestine," while in Tel Aviv a high Jewish source said Jewish officialdom was considering a retaliatory "passive resistance movement."

A communique from British military authorities said that the operations were virtually over, but that searches for hidden arms were still in progress at a number of places.

The communique said one Jew was killed when a shot had to be fired in Tel Aviv last night, bringing casualties thus far to three Jews killed and one British soldier accidentally killed.

The Jew killed in Tel Aviv was identified as Eliezer Malhi, 25, who was shot to death, Jewish leaders said, by a British soldier when he appeared on the balcony of his home during the curfew. Plans were made by Jews for a large procession at his funeral.

A number of persons suffered minor cuts and bruises, and 13 Jews were admitted to hospitals, the bulletin added.

A secret radio station of the Jewish resistance movement, "The Voice of Israel," declared:

"Britain has declared war on the Jewish community. We will return it."

Passive resistance would include non-payment of Taxes, a strike by Jews in Government service and in all ways complete non-cooperation with the British," a high Jewish source said.

Bitter Campaign Ends Tomorrow In Mississippi

Sen. Bilbo's Seat Will Be at Stake in Democratic Primary

JACKSON, Miss., June 30 (AP)— Mississippi's bitter congressional campaign, marked by stress on the race issue and reports of possible
federal investigation, ends Tuesday
when the state's Democrats nominate a United States senator and seven representatives.

Unless there is a runoff primary,
the vote will be equivalent to election, Mississippi being virtually a one-party state.

But before the voting starts, the Senate Elections committee is due to consider whether a formal investigation is warranted by published charges that eligible negroes might be kept from casting their ballots.

The group met in Washington
Saturday, but deferred action till tomorrow.

Investigation Asked

Last week Sen. Taylor (R-Idaho) called upon the Senate to investigate reports that a senator had said he would do all in his power to prevent a group from exercising his right to vote.

He did not identify the senator or the incident, but Sen. Theodore G. Bilbo (D-Miss.), running for his third nomination to the office, has called upon "every red-blooded Anglo-Saxon in Mississippi to resort to any means" to keep negroes from voting.

Rep. John E. Rankin, seeking re-nomination from Mississippi's first congressional district, has urged "all law-abiding negroes" to remain
away from the polls.

Surveys have shown that negro registration is a small percentage of the total, and in many counties
there is none at all. But Bilbo claims it will increase with each election until it means "an end to white supremacy."

Five Candidates for Senate

Here are Tuesday's candidates:
For senator—Bilbo, 69-year-old lawyer and farmer of Poplarville, fiery debater, who has held public office almost continuously since he was elected to the Legislature in 1908. He has been in the Senate since 1934.

Ross A. Collins, Jackson, 66-year-old lawyer, who served nine terms
in the House of Representatives.
His chief campaign plank has been a charge that Bilbo has not championed white supremacy strenuously enough.

Tom Q. Ellis, 55, Jackson, supreme court clerk, who claims he was chosen to that office with the largest vote ever given a statewide candidate in Mississippi.

Nelson T. Levings, Gulfport, 44-year-old naval veteran and former bank vice-president. He has addressed his plea chiefly to the veterans,
and has claimed white supremacy is not an issue.

Frank Harper, former state senator and peach tree salesman, who has hitch-hiked over the state in his campaign. Claims he cast the deciding vote to kill impeachment proceedings against Bilbo when he was in the Legislature.

Sharp Increases In Food Prices, Rents Are Seen

Some Forecast Ruinous Inflation, Others Return of Old Days

(By The Associated Press)

The prices a man pays for bread
and butter, a roof over his head,
the shirt on his back—harnessed
four years by federal controls—were cut loose today (Monday) to set their own pace.

A canvass of the nation as OPA expired at midnight, brought these early trends in the dramatic situation which some predicted would end in ruinous inflation; others in a return of the old days "with plenty of everything at a fair price."

Meat industry spokesmen predicted a 10 per cent increase in meat prices, or five cents a pound.

A jump of two cents a quart in milk was forecast in dairy quarters.

Real estate authorities indicated
a 15 per cent boost in rentals, effective August 1. Today is rent-payday, customary time for 30-day notices to be served.

A. and P. Prices Same Today

However, one of the nation's largest food chains—A. and P.—announced that "prices in all our stores will show no increase Monday."

Spokesmen for restaurants in New York city and Chicago foresaw
only minor increases on some items and this accompanied with a wider selection of foods previously withheld due to prohibitively low price ceilings.

Many sources optimistically predicted no immediate change in the price situation, pending further
congressional reaction to President
Truman's veto of the OPA extension bill.

And others predicted that prices,
after a brief flareup, would subside
but, to Jews, considerably higher than existing OPA ceilings.

Typical reaction from insiders in the industries affected by the death of OPA was the statement of Harry
B. Coffee, president of the Union
Stock Yards Company, Omaha, Neb.

"Consumers will pay more than OPA ceiling prices for meat," he said. "Something 80 per cent of them have been doing anyway."

Coffee predicted, however, that
"prices will seek a reasonable level."

Sugar Rationing Continues

Although sugar rationing will continue, sugar trade officials in Washington said an immediate increase in the sugar price was certain.

A temporary increase with a downward trend almost immediately was forecast by Carl F. Dietz, president of the Manufacturers' Association of Syracuse, N. Y.

"Inflation disguised by government subsidies, black market, deterioration of quality and other offshoots of OPA will become immediately apparent to all," he said,
this bringing about higher prices.

U. S. Will Support Full U. N. Hearing for Siam

NEW YORK, June 30 (AP)—The United States will support a debate for Siam before the United Nations Security Council on its border dispute with French Indo-China and further will back Siam's application for United Nations membership, a spokesman for the United States delegation said today.

Siam's parliament has decided to officially submit the case to the world agency and reports from Bangkok said a delegation would come here in July. A Siamese commission, meanwhile, was preparing a history of the border controversies dating from the era of French colonial expansion in the nineteenth century.

The United States spokesman
thus anticipated that this question would be the next big one going before the council, now in recess after its narrowing sessions on the Spanish question.

Porter Is Sure Controls Will Be Restored Soon

Top OPA Officials Strive
To Keep Agency on Standby Basis

WASHINGTON, June 30 (AP)— Paul Porter, OPA administrator, asserted tonight that if a new price law "does not do so by its specific terms," OPA will re-establish present ceilings on all items "when legal authority is available."

Porter prefaced that caution to business with the confident predication that Congress will restore price and rent controls within a short time.

The OPA chieftain said he did not expect any "sweeping upward price movements," during what he expects will be a comparatively short interim in federal price control.

There will be "some instances of excessive prices on certain commodities which are in short supply,"
Porter said in a statement.

But he added that these should be "isolated cases" to be appraised against the background of what is happening to prices generally.

Porter's statement was released as top OPA officials met in emergency sessions across the country to keep the agency on a standby basis, even-though its present legal authority terminates at midnight tonight.

Tenants Have Some Protection

Upon instructions from Porter,
OPA regional administrators drafted
similar plans to keep their field staffs throughout the nation on the job while Congress debates whether to restore price control legislation.

Porter said the absence of federal controls on rents does not leave a tenant completely without protection nor a landlord without obligation. He said tenants holding leases will be protected by them,
and that there are local and state laws which protect "the much larger number of tenants who have no leases."

Sugar rationing, he added, will be continued "since authority for this program arises from the Second War Powers act which was extended into next year by the president's signature Saturday."

President Truman backed this up with an executive order tonight, supplying special authority for asserting these OPA functions under the war powers measure.

The order allows OPA to carry on operations which do not deal with fixing price or rent controls.

In this category, it provided for continuance of OPA enforcement activities, so long as they deal with violations which occurred prior to expiration of the Price Control act.

A White House announcement viewed the order said "it is the functions 'should be retained in OPA and the price administrator."

Suits May Proceed

One important factor which
"should tend to prevent skyrocketing prices is the natural resistance of consumers to ill-advised efforts to take advantage of this hiatus," Porter declared.

The OPA boss emphasized that price increases which may occur
"during the brief hiatus without controls" will not be considered the basis for any permanent price hike.

With respect to enforcement,
Porter noted that the expiring Price Control act permits prosecutions in the future of violations which occurred while the act still was in force.

Under this exception, Porter said,
all pending treble damage actions,
contempt proceedings and criminal prosecutions may proceed.

He said further that investigations aimed at obtaining proof in all pending litigation will continue during the interim period.

Porter said that since President Truman's broadcast last night he had received many messages from OPA employees and volunteer workers pledging their "wholehearted support to the president's call to remain at their posts."

Chinese Truce Is Extended; Peace Talks Continue

Feared Renewal of Violence in Manchuria Is Avoided

By HAROLD K. MILKS

NANKING, June 30 (AP)—China's uneasy truce was extended indefinitely today in an effort to find a formula in which government and Communist factions can live in peace.

The government made the announcement of the extension as the truce in Manchuria arrived at noon.

Gen. Marshall, special United States envoy who had labored long hours all last week in an effort to find the formula, this was given a breather and the feared renewal of violence in Manchuria was avoided.

Peng Hsueh-pei, Chinese minister of information, made the formal announcement that the "status quo"
was being extended to permit further search for an agreement. He said Marshall would continue to direct the negotiations.

The length of the truce extension
was not specified beyond the assertion that the government agreed to continue cessation of hostilities as long as the Communists did likewise.

Peng, added, however, that the government was determined to obtain concrete settlement of political as well as military differences before accepting a final agreement.

"Gen. Marshall worked incessantly seeking peace for China and the entire world," Peng asserted. "We should not disappoint him. The government therefore has decided to request Gen. Marshall to continue his efforts to secure a peaceful settlement."

The statement was disappointing to those who had hoped that by extending the full pressure of United States military aid, loans and mutual assistance for both factions Marshall would be able to force the signature of a new settlement before the truce ended.

A government source said the fact that Marshall would be unable to "remain indefinitely in China" was an important factor in the negotiations.

The minister of information's statement was seen as a re-echoing of other government announcements which have indicated the mistrust still is strong between the rival factions.

Peng warned that "if the Communist troops continue to attack as they have recently, the government will be compelled to resist and counterattack."

CPA Lifts Inventory Limits on Newsprint

WASHINGTON, June 30 (AP)—The Civilian Production Administration
tonight lifted its special inventory limits on newsprint. It simultaneously revoked all import controls on the paper.

Hereafter, the agency said, newspaper publishers will be subject only to the supply cuts which govern
other scarce materials—that the users keep on hand no more than
"a minimum practicable working inventory."

Previously newspapers have been limited to a 50 days' supply of newsprint in the West and South, 30 days' supply elsewhere.

NON-TARGET SHIPS
RETURN TO BIKINI

ABOARD USS APPALACHIAN
OFF BIKINI, Monday, July 1 (AP)—
The first two waves of the non-target fleet re-entered Bikini lagoon today within three hours after the world's fourth atomic bomb sank two of the 73 guinea pig vessels, capsized a third and damaged 16 others.

The first to return were crew-men checking radioactivity of the possibly lethal waters, ships
and islands, to establish safety before permitting the bulk of the working fleet to re-enter.

"Radiological activity" was about as expected," a brief announcement said.

Two transports, the Gilliam and Carls, sunk; the destroyer Lamson capsized, and the carrier Independence battered and burned, adrift
and listing noticeably.

Heavy damage was done to the Japanese cruiser Prins Eugen, the Japanese battleship Nagato, the cruiser Pensacola, the submarine Skate, the Japanese cruiser Sakawa,
as well as the Independence.

Fires Are Started

Fires—reported no longer visible
some three and a half hours after the blast, had been started aboard
the gallant old carrier Saratoga, battleship Nevada, battleship New York destroyer Wilson, and transports Briscoe, Niagara, Bladen, Banner, Butte and Cortland.

The task force commander earlier

aboard a half-dozen ships, shortly after the explosion.

The sound of its blast—a distinct boom—reached the Appalachian, 18 miles distant, about two and a half minutes later. With it came the shock wave. I noted a sudden, sharp pain in my ears, and felt the rush of the wind. But it was only a small,
sharp shock—far from the wind anticipated by those who had heard descriptions of the New Mexico blast which swept men from their feet at 20 miles.

First reports from Vice Adm. W.
H. P. Blandy, task force commander, cited this damage to the target fleet.

Gov. O'Connor Calls on Marylanders To Avoid Making Excessive Charges

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 30 (AP)— Appealing to Marylanders "to maintain a sane and reasonable attitude" toward cost-of-living increases threatened by the expiration of price control legislation, Gov.
O'Connor called on citizens of the state today to avoid making "excessive" and "exorbitant" charges.

"Without further action by the Congress," O'Connor said, "the basic cost of the essentials of living will be uncontrolled by legal means."

But this does not mean that excessive charges and rents will be justified. Any exorbitant charge is forbidden by every rule of right and reason.

"In fact, if there are sudden and unreasonable increases by some groups, and if prices of certain commodities and rents will be modified, and other price controls will follow and wage scales
will be upset."

The governor's statement said he asked the state law department yesterday whether the state had any legal right to continue price controls and was told it had none.

Under the War Powers act proposed some time ago by the Mary-

Ohioan Assails Chief Executive For Veto of OPA Compromise Bill

President Is Accused of "Misrepresenting" Taft's Position

GOP CHAIRMAN ALSO DENOUNCES TRUMAN

White House, Congress Gird for Fight to Finish over OPA

WASHINGTON, July 1 (AP)—Monday—All vestige of federal control over prices and rents expired today amid a cloud of recriminations over who killed the OPA.

President Truman blamed the Congress, and especially Sen. Taft, Ohio Republican, for the deed. Taft and Carroll Reece, chairman of the Republican National Committee, blamed the president.

Paul Porter, OPA administrator, expressed belief that it won't be long before Congress re-enacts price control.

But Sen. W. Lee (Pappy) O'Daniel, the Texas Democrat, promised to filibuster "till the end of time if necessary" to block Senate consideration of any extension legislation.

Meanwhile Office of Price Administration schedules of ceiling prices, posted in business places, hotels, restaurants, and other spots, or attached to goods for sale, have no further legal significance unless Congress chooses to reauthorize the agency.

Created in 1942 during the war to keep prices on a fairly even keel, the OPA had weathered many political storms although it had been tossed about a bit.

OPA Meets Its Waterloo But it met its Waterloo the past weekend.

Congress had sought to extend the Price Control act, beyond mid-July, June 30. But the form in which the extension legislation finally was delivered to President Truman was such that he rejected it Saturday by veto as "impossible."

The House sustained his veto, and efforts to enact simple extension resolutions prior to the weekend recess of both the House and Senate failed.

Mr. Truman, who told the nation Saturday night why he vetoed the bill, blamed among other things, an amendment by Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) as likely to increase sharply the price of goods.

Manufacturers, the president said, would receive "a bonanza" under the Taft amendment.

"It was a cruel jest," the president added, to say that the Taft amendment would help production.

Sen. Taft got his chance at a rebuttal last night in a radio broadcast.

Taft said Mr. Truman had "deliberately misrepresented" the senator's position in a long "personal attack" and declared that the president, by vetoing the OPA extension bill finally offered him, had "chosen to plunge the economy of this country into chaos."

As the nation entered its first day of business without the restraining hand of OPA to guide its price policies, the most common talk was that business would maintain, to a great degree, the prevailing price bases while awaiting congressional reaction to President Truman's plea for a "workable" bill.

Flood of Telegrams Taft contended the responsibility for "the ultimate and unavoidable breakdown of price control will result directly from the president's policy, not from act of Congress."

"My own position and that of Congress is perfectly logical. We (Continued on Page 3, Col. 1)

MESSAGES FOR SENATORS PILE UP

British Arrest 2,000 Persons In Palestine

Four Are Killed in Operations "To Restore Law and Order"

JERUSALEM, June 30 (AP)—The British announced today that 2,000 persons were held for investigation and four persons were killed in operations begun yesterday "to restore law and order in Palestine," while in Tel Aviv a high Jewish source said Jewish officialdom was considering a retaliatory "passive resistance movement."

A communique from British military authorities said that the operations were virtually over, but that searches for hidden arms were still in progress at a number of places.

The communique said one Jew was killed when a shot had been fired in Tel Aviv last night, bringing casualties thus far to three Jews killed and one British soldier accidentally killed.

The Jew killed in Tel Aviv was identified as Eliezer Mahi, 25, who was shot to death, Jewish leaders said, by a British soldier when he appeared on the balcony of his home during the curfew. Plans were made by Jews for a large procession at his funeral.

A number of persons suffered minor cuts and bruises, and 13 Jews were admitted to hospitals, the bulletin added.

A secret radio station of the Jewish resistance movement, "The Voice of Israel," declared:

"Britain has declared war on the Jewish community. We will return it."

Passive resistance would include non-payment of taxes, a strike by Jews in Government service and "in all ways complete non-cooperation with the British," a high Jewish source said.

Bitter Campaign Ends Tomorrow In Mississippi

Sen. Bilbo's Seat Will Be at Stake in Democratic Primary

JACKSON, Miss., June 30 (AP)—Mississippi's bitter congressional campaign, marked by stress on the race issue and reports of possible federal investigation, ends Tuesday when the state's Democratic nominee to the United States Senate and seven representatives.

Unless there is a runoff primary, the vote will be equivalent to election, Mississippi being virtually a one-party state.

But before the voting starts, the Senate Elections committee is due to consider whether a formal investigation is warranted by published charges that eligible negroes might be kept from casting their ballots.

The group met in Washington Saturday, but deferred action till tomorrow.

Investigation Asked Last week Sen. Taylor (R-Iowa) called upon the Senate to investigate reports that a senator had said he would do all in his power to prevent a group from exercising its right to vote.

He did not identify the senator or the incident, but Sen. Theodore G. Bilbo (D-Miss.), running for his third nomination to the office, has called upon "every red-blooded Anglo-Saxon in Mississippi to resort to any means" to keep negroes from voting.

Rep. John E. Rankin, seeking re-nomination from Mississippi's first congressional district, has urged "all law-abiding negroes" to remain away from the polls.

Surveys have shown that negro registration is a small percentage of the total, and in many counties there is none at all. But Bilbo claims it will increase with each election until it means "an end to white supremacy."

Five Candidates for Senate Here are Tuesday's candidates: For senator—

Bilbo, 69-year-old lawyer and farmer of Poplarville, fiery debater, who has held public office almost continually since he was elected to the Legislature in 1908. He has been in the Senate since 1934.

Ross A. Collins, Jackson, 56-year-old lawyer, who served nine terms in the House of Representatives. His chief campaign plank has been a charge that Bilbo has not championed white supremacy strenuously enough.

Tom Q. Ellis, 55, Jackson, supreme court clerk, who claims he was chosen to that office with the largest vote ever given a statewide candidate in Mississippi.

Nelson T. LeVings, Gulfport, 44-year-old naval veteran and former bank vice-president. He has addressed his plea chiefly to the veterans, and has claimed white supremacy is not an issue.

Frank Harper, former state senator and peach tree salesman, who has hitch-hiked over the state in his campaign. Claims he cast the deciding vote to kill impeachment proceedings against Bilbo when he was in the Legislature.

Sharp Increases In Food Prices, Rents Are Seen

Some Forecast Ruinous Inflation, Others Return of Old Days

By The Associated Press The prices a man pays for bread and butter, a roof over his head, the shirt on his back—harnessed four years by federal controls—were cut loose today (Monday) to set their own pace.

A canvass of the nation, as OPA expired at midnight, brought these early trends in the dramatic situation which some predicted would lead to ruinous inflation; others in a return of the old days "with plenty of everything at a fair price."

Meat industry spokesmen predicted a 10 per cent increase in meat prices, or five cents a pound. A jump of two cents a quart in milk was forecast in dairy quarters.

Real estate authorities indicated a 15 per cent boost in rentals effective August 1. Today is rent-paying day, customary time for 30-day notices to be served.

A. and P. Prices Same Today However, one of the nation's largest food chains—A. and P.—announced that "prices in all our stores will show no increase Monday."

Spokesmen for restaurants in New York city and Chicago forecast only minor increases on some items and this accompanied with a wider selection of foods previously withheld due to prohibitively low price ceilings.

Many sources optimistically predicted no immediate change in the price situation, pending further congressional reaction to President Truman's veto of the OPA extension bill.

And others predicted that prices, after a brief flareup, would subside but to levels considerably higher than existing OPA ceilings.

Typical reaction from insiders in the industries affected by the death of OPA was the statement of Harry B. Coffey, president of the Union Stock Yards Company, Omaha, Neb.

"Consumers will pay more than OPA ceiling prices for meat," he said. "Something 90 per cent of them have been doing anyway."

Coffey predicted, however, that "prices will seek a reasonable level."

Sugar Rationing Continues Although sugar rationing will continue, sugar trade officials in Washington said an immediate increase in the sugar price was certain.

A temporary increase with a downward trend almost immediately was forecast by Carl P. Dietz, president of the Manufacturers Association of Syracuse, N. Y.

"Inflation disguised by government subsidies, black market, deterioration of quality and other offshoots of OPA will become immediately apparent to all," he said, thus bringing about higher prices.

U. S. Will Support Full U. N. Hearing for Siam

NEW YORK, June 30 (AP)—The United States will support a full hearing for Siam before the United Nations Security Council on its border dispute with French Indo-China and further will back Siam's application for United Nations membership, a spokesman for the United States delegation said today.

Siam's parliament has decided to submit the case to the world agency and reports from Bangkok said a delegation would come here in July. A Siamese commission, meanwhile, was preparing a history of the border controversies dating from the era of French colonial expansion in the nineteenth century.

The United States spokesman said anticipated that this question would be the next big one going before the council, now in recess after its narrowing sessions on the Spanish question.

The state's attorney said that Heitens will be returned to the Bridewell hospital tonight. When asked by a reporter whether he will question the youth further at the hospital, Tuohy replied:

"We got nothing out of him that's any good," Tuohy said after Heitens had undergone the test at the detective bureau. "He just refused to co-operate."

Porter Is Sure Controls Will Be Restored Soon

Top OPA Officials Strive To Keep Agency on Standby Basis

WASHINGTON, June 30 (AP)—Paul Porter, OPA administrator, asserted tonight that if a new price law "does not do so by its specific terms," OPA will re-establish present ceilings on all items "when legal authority is available."

Porter prefaced that caution to business with the confident prediction that Congress will restore price and rent controls within a short time.

The OPA chief said he did not expect any "sweeping upward price movements," during what he expects will be a comparatively short interim in federal price control.

There will be "some instances of excessive prices on certain commodities which are in short supply," Porter said in a statement.

But he added that these should be "isolated cases" to be appraised against the background of "what is happening to prices generally."

Porter's statement was released as top OPA officials met in emergency sessions across the country to keep the agency on a standby basis, even though its present legal authority terminates at midnight tonight.

Tenants Have Some Protection Upon instructions from Porter, OPA regional administrators drafted similar plans to keep their field staffs throughout the nation on the job while Congress debates whether to restore price control legislation.

Porter said the absence of federal controls on rents does not leave a tenant completely without protection nor a landlord without obligation. He said tenants holding leases will be protected by them, and that there are local and state laws which protect "the much larger number of tenants who have no leases."

Sugar rationing, he added, will be continued "since authority for this program arises from the Second War Powers act which was extended in 1945 by the president's signature Saturday."

President Truman backed this up with an executive order tonight, supplying specific authority for continuing these OPA functions under the war powers measure.

The order allows OPA to carry on operations which do not deal with fixing price or rent controls.

In this category, it provided for continuance of OPA enforcement activities, so long as they deal with violations which occurred prior to expiration of the Price Control act.

A White House announcement accompanying the order said "it is the view of the president" that these functions "should be retained in OPA and the price administrator."

Suits May Proceed One important factor which "should tend to prevent skyrocketing prices is the natural resistance of consumers to ill-advised efforts to take advantage of this hiatus," Porter declared.

The OPA boss emphasized that price increases which may occur "during the brief interlude without a statute" will not be considered the basis for any permanent price hike.

With respect to enforcement, Porter noted that the expiring Price Control act permits prosecutions in the future of violations which occurred while the act still was in force.

Under this exception, Porter said, "all pending treble damage actions, contempt proceedings and criminal prosecutions may proceed."

He said further that investigations aimed at obtaining proof in all pending litigation will continue during the interim period.

Porter said that since President Truman's broadcast last night he had received many messages from OPA employees and volunteer workers pledging their "wholehearted support to the president's call to remain at their posts."

The minister of information's statement was seen as a re-echoing of other government announcements which have indicated the mistrust still is strong between the rival factions.

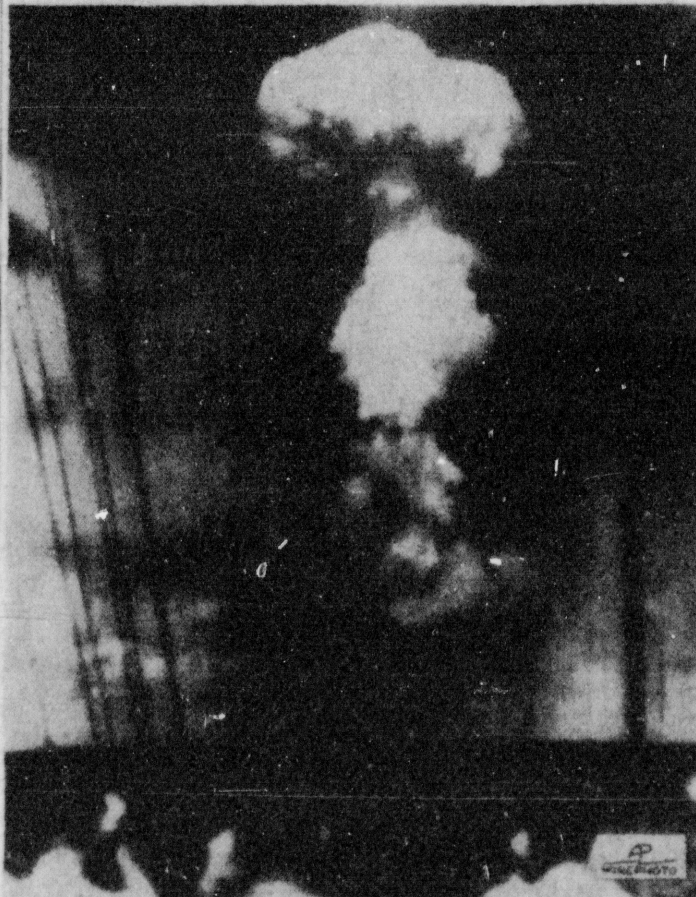

Peng warned that "if the Communist troops continue to attack as they have recently, the government will be compelled to resist and counter-attack."

CPA Lifts Inventory Limits on Newsprint WASHINGTON, June 30 (AP)—The Civilian Production Administration tonight lifted its special inventory limits on newsprint. It simultaneously revoked all import controls on the paper.

Hereafter, the agency said, newspaper publishers will be subject only to the supply curbs which govern other scarce materials—that the users keep on hand no more than a "minimum practicable working inventory."

Previously newspapers have been limited to a 50 days' supply of newsprint in the West and South, 30 days' supply elsewhere.

Chinese Truce Is Extended; Peace Talks Continue

Fearful Renewal of Violence in Manchuria Is Avoided

By HAROLD K. MILKS NANKING, June 30 (AP)—China's uneasy truce was extended indefinitely today in an effort to find a formula in which government and Communist factions can live in peace.

The government made the announcement of the extension as the truce in Manchuria arrived at noon.

Gen. Marshall, special United States envoy who had labored long hours all last week in an effort to find the formula, thus was given a breather and the feared renewal of violence in Manchuria was avoided.

Peng Hsueh-Pei, Chinese minister of information, made the formal announcement that the "status quo" was being extended to permit further search for an agreement. He said Marshall would continue to direct the negotiations.

The length of the truce extension was not specified beyond the assertion that the government agreed to continue cessation of hostilities as long as the Communists did likewise.

Peng, added, however, that the government was determined to obtain concrete settlement of political as well as military differences before accepting a final agreement.

"Gen. Marshall worked incessantly seeking peace for China and the entire world," Peng asserted. "We should not disappoint him. The government therefore has decided to request Gen. Marshall to continue his efforts to secure a peaceful settlement."

The statement was disappointing to those who had hoped that by exerting the full pressure of United States military aid, loans and mutual assistance for both factions Marshall would be able to force the signature of a new settlement before the truce ended.

A government source said the fact that Marshall would be unable to "remain indefinitely in China" was an important factor in the negotiations.

The minister of information's statement was seen as a re-echoing of other government announcements which have indicated the mistrust still is strong between the rival factions.

NON-TARGET SHIPS RETURN TO BIKINI

ABOARD USS APPALACHIAN OFF BIKINI, Monday, July 1 (AP)—The first two waves of the non-target fleet re-entered Bikini lagoon today within three hours after the world's fourth atomic bomb sank two of the 73 guinea pig vessels, capsized a third and damaged 16 others.

The first to return were crewmen checking radioactivity of the possibly lethal waters, ships and islands, to establish safety before permitting the bulk of the working fleet to re-enter.

Radioactivity activity was about as expected, a brief announcement said.

Fleet in Bikini lagoon today, but capital ships stood up staunchly beneath the terrific force.

The Nagasaki-type bomb, with the flash and heat of 10,000 suns, burst in the air above the center of the deserted fleet at 9 a. m. (5 p. m. Sunday, E.S.T.) with a mass of flame that quickly sent a vast cloud column towering up 30,000 feet.

A task force spokesman announced at 11:15 a. m. (7:15 p. m. Sunday, E.S.T.) this toll:

Two transports, the Gilliam and Carlisle, sunk; the destroyer Lamson capsized, and the carrier Independence battered and burned, adrift and listing noticeably.

Heavily damaged were the Nazi heavy cruiser Prinz Eugen, the Japanese battleship Nagato, the cruiser Pensacola, the submarine Skate, the Japanese cruiser Sakawa, as well as the Independence.

Fires Are Started Fires—reported no longer visible some three and a half hours after the blast, had been started aboard the gallant old carrier Saratoga, battleship Nevada, battleship New York destroyer Wilson, and transports Briscoe, Niagara, Bladen, Banner, Butte and Cortland.

The task force command earlier reported that the "moderate" fire aboard a half-dozen ships, shortly after the explosion.

The sound of its blast—a distinct boom—reached the Appalachian, 1½ miles distant, about two and a half minutes later. With it came the shock wave. I noted a sudden, sharp pain in my ears, and for the rush of the wind. But it was only a small, sharp shock—far from the wind anticipated by those who had heard descriptions of the New Mexico blast which swept men from their feet at 20 miles.

First reports from Vice Adm. W. H. P. Blandy, task force commander, cited this damage to the target fleet:

"The destroyer Lamson has capsized. . . . Several other ships appear to be damaged and the following (Continued on Page 6, Col. 1)

Gov. O'Connor Calls on Marylanders To Avoid Making Excessive Charges

ANNAPOLES, Md., June 30 (AP)—Appealing to Marylanders "to maintain a sane and reasonable attitude" toward cost-of-living increases threatened by the expiration of price control legislation, Gov. O'Connor called on citizens of the state today to avoid making "excessive" and "arbitrary" charges.

"Without further action by the Congress," O'Connor said, "the basic cost of the essentials of living will be uncontrolled by legal means."

"But this does not mean that excessive charges and rents will be justified. Any exorbitant charge is forbidden by every rule of right and reason."

"In fact, if there are sudden and unreasonable increases by some groups, and if prices of certain commodities soar, then other price booms will follow and wage scales will be upset."

The governor's statement said he asked the state law department yesterday whether the state had any legal right to continue price controls and was told it had none.

Under the War Powers act proposed some time ago by the Maryland Council of Defense, he said, such authority would now exist, but the Legislature did not pass the bill.

"I appeal to the citizens of Maryland to maintain a sane and reasonable attitude," he continued, "for the sake of the great mass of our people."

"Especially for those who are not financially able to meet excessive charges for the necessities of life, I entreat all to give consideration to the needs and wants of our fellow citizens and not yield to selfishness and the temptation for unreasonable profits."

Comparing the battle against inflation to the recent war, O'Connor said the present situation "calls for the same spirit of sacrifice by those who temporarily can profit excessively" (Continued on Page 3, Col. 2)

Five American Soldiers Are Injured While Helping To Halt Trieste Riot

TRIESTE, Monday, July 1 (AP)—Five American soldiers were injured yesterday in a grenade explosion while helping to quell rioting by pro-Italian residents of Trieste which led to the calling of a general strike over the whole of the troubled Venezia-Giulia area.

The riots broke out in this hotly-disputed city shortly after an attack on the 30 participants of the Italian Production Administration tonight lifted its special inventory limits on newsprint. It simultaneously revoked all import controls on the paper.

Hereafter, the agency said, newspaper publishers will be subject only to the supply curbs which govern other scarce materials—that the users keep on hand no more than a "minimum practicable working inventory."

to break up a crowd in Garibaldi square in midtown Trieste. They received first aid at battalion headquarters and then were hospitalized.

Military authorities temporarily withheld the injured soldiers' names, but said none were injured seriously.

In protest of the riots, a combine of organizations in Trieste announced a general strike would start at noon today. Among the organizations participating will be the Communist party, the Italian General Labor Confederation, the United Syndicates and the Italo-Slav Anti-Fascist Youth Organization.

One British officer, hearing of the attack on the cyclists, said:

"This has been coming for a long time. They have just been looking for a cue."

The rioters are apparently well-increased by early, erroneous reports that one of the racers had been killed by gunfire.

Way to Jealousy, Miss Fairfax Says

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Two letters just received from the same town give every indication of referring to the same situation. One is from a young man, and the other quite evidently from his girl. Possibly they got together and each agreed to write me his side of the story.

Following the "ladies first" principle, let's begin with the girl's letter:

"Dear Miss Fairfax: I am very much in love with a young man. We have been going together for six months. He tells me he loves me very much, but doesn't always show it."

"He used to be the sweetest guy in the world, but for the past week he's been a completely different person. But he says he still loves me."

"He is making me very unhappy, continually accusing me of not loving him and questioning my sincerity in everything I do or say. I try to be patient and hope it will pass, but it doesn't. We are me your advice."

And now for the young man's side:

"Dear Miss Fairfax: I am a young man who is very much in love with this girl, and she says she loves me too."

"But it seems as though we don't get along and yet we agree on everything. She doesn't believe that I trust her, and we are talking about breaking up. I would appreciate your advice."

Offhand, I'd say that if these two—or any other young couple—were having difficulty getting along even before they're married, they're likely to find the going very tough afterward. This is especially true if there be any question as to complete confidence between them. For mistrust opens the way to all sorts of disastrous jealousies and suspicions.

There are only two—no, let's say three—reasons for a man continually accusing his girl of not loving him, and doubting her sincerity. The first is that she may actually have given him cause for his doubt, in which case I think he would do well to think things over very carefully before accusing her to break up his wife. The second is that he may be the neurotic type of personality which finds fault, criticizes and suspects even though there is not the slightest basis for any of it. And in such a case, this girl herself is in for a very poor time.

But there is still that third possible cause of friction, and that is, either one, or both of them, may be in a temporary phase of irritability due to some purely physical cause such as fatigue, lowered vitality, indigestion, eyestrain or even a cold. After all, the girl herself says it has only been "the past week" that she has noticed this change in her boyfriend, and "the sweetest guy in the world" could hardly have a complete change of character overnight. I would suggest that before making a definite decision to break up, as they say they are talking of doing, they both catch up on their sleep. Things look very different sometimes, when you're rested!

Of course there is always the possibility that these two may be temperamentally incompatible, and it's just beginning to show. If this is true, they'd better come to agreement on one thing, at least, which would be to call it a day right now, so far as any serious plans for matrimony are concerned.

Meat Should Not Be Eaten "Rare," Doctor Declares

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

We can pity the poor caveman when we remember that he ate all of his food raw or, if our sympathies don't extend so far, we can at least congratulate ourselves that we eat cooked foods. Only contrast a hunk of raw meat with a well-browned roast and you'll feel a glow of gratitude that with the passing of the ages man learned how to use heat to make his food not only more digestible but more delicious.

The art of cookery, which makes a pleasure of necessity, grew up in happenstance fashion in the kitchens of the world. Thus, it is a little strange that traditional methods of food preparation should often be sound from a health standpoint. Just the same it's true.

Well-Cooked Pork

Pork, for example, should always be well-cooked and it usually is, even where people have nothing more than the taste-test to guide them. Few people would like underdone veal and that's a good thing, too, because to be digestible this meat should be thoroughly cooked.

When it comes to beef, however, there's a different story, for beef, which is so often preferred raw, may occasionally be infested with a tapeworm parasite, which can also thrive in the human body. Infestation with the beef tapeworm may occur wherever raw or inadequately cooked beef is a popular item of the diet. It is one of the most common tapeworms found in human beings.

The cattle acquire the worm by eating materials containing live tapeworm eggs. The eggs hatch in the intestine and then the young worms penetrate into the muscle tissue, where they develop into larvae. If the larvae are eaten they develop into worms in eight to ten weeks in the intestinal tract of the human being.

Slight Irritation

The parasite causes little or no irritation of the lining membrane of the bowel where the worm attaches itself. Early in the infestation it may be found that the number of white blood cells are increased, particularly the number of white cells known as eosinophils. Slight digestive upsets, loss of weight and nervousness are present in some cases.

In order to prevent infestation with this type of worm, cattle should be kept from grazing on contaminated land. Beef should be properly inspected and refrigerated. It has been shown that at very low temperatures the larvae are killed within five days. Of course, thorough cooking or pickling will have the same effect.

The diagnosis of tapeworm infestation is made by finding eggs of the worm, or segments of the worm, itself, in the bowel movements. Treatment is best carried out with the patient in a hospital. One drug commonly employed is known as cecidrin or Aspidium or male fern.

Carbon tetrachloride has also been found effective. The treatment must always be continued until the head of the worm is passed and identified by the physician.

Dolenz Will Play Top Male Role In New Picture

BY DOROTHY MANNERS

HOLLYWOOD, June 30.—A couple of years ago when George Dolenz was the male de at the Trocadero, Louella Parsons took a squint at him one night and duly reported in her column that he should be in the movies. It gave George an idea which eventually led to a Universal contract and now he gets the break of his career—the top male role in Preston Sturges' "The Shooting of Our Lady of the Dove," Prosper Merimee's novel.

Let I have given the impression, which heavens know I don't want, to that the step from being a cafe "captain" to movie stardom is merely a matter of making up one's mind. Let me report the following: Dolenz put in months of hard grind at Max Rheinhart's drama school and accepted small roles at Universal to get the necessary training. He is a suave, but rugged type, which comes in handy for the Sturges movie in which he plays a corsican hero. It's an 1850 satire on wars.

The most unusual adoption story in adoption-minded Hollywood is the offer made by Sonny Tufts and his wife to make 9-year-old Donald Devlin their son and legal heir. The Tufts, who are childless, are crazy about the little boy who has been working with Sonny in "Sweet Guy the Hellinger picture at Universal. He has parents—in fact, his mother, Mrs. John Devlin, accompanied the youngster here from their home in Brooklyn. When the Tufts approached her about adopting the little guy, setting up a trust fund for him and planning his education, Mrs. Devlin was flabbergasted that she sent immediately for her husband, a New York oil company employee. He arrives in Hollywood Tuesday to personally hear the startling plan in more detail and to discuss a decision with his wife.

Paul Douglas will fight Virginia Field's divorce and has so informed her attorney through the New York lawyer he just engaged. In spite of her statement out here that he knew she planned to leave him, that they had discussed a separation a year ago, he's sticking to his story that her telephone call with the bad news came as a complete surprise. I have a hunch it will also surprise you to learn the name of the Hollywood gentleman said to be the new interest in Virginia's life. Of course, you know that Douglas is the star of "Born Yesterday" on Broadway. They have one child.

Remember I said they would start flocking back to Broadway? Well, they're flocking. The latest to sign for a Broadway play this fall is Charles Laughton who has just told Mike Todd that he will star in "Galileo" for him. The dramatization of the life of the famous astronomer, marks Charles' first New York stage appearance since "Payment Deferred" 10 years ago. "Galileo" is authored by Berthold Brecht, the refugee playwright, who wrote many European successes before being marked "No. 1" on Hitler's list for extermination.

Bert Wheeler takes over the part of Elwood Dowd in "Harvey" while Frank Fay takes a month's vacation from the rabbit opera on or around August 5. Frank is coming to Hollywood for four weeks rest and it is to be noted that his romance of many years, Betty Keen, will be here on the coast about the same time. He isn't interested in picture bids and has already turned down a cafe personal appearance bid at a but terrific salary.

Ever since the Cary Grant blast at the New York autograph hounds, other visitors to the big town are taking extra precautions to be on the good side of the kids. Donald O'Connor, now appearing at the Roxy, has the fans waiting outside the theater, lined up against the wall in single file (like a nylon line) and takes their slips of paper one by one. Andy Russell, on stage at the Paramount, has the sowers come into his dressing room in poses, signs and schmoozes, and then sends out for another batch. The fans who hang around Toots Shind are always patient when Sinatra's around. They know he'll give, and he does. George Raft, emerging from a steak house, let three empty cars go by (a sacrifice in that trafficked town) to pacify a crowd of belles who believe in taking their admiration out in signatures.

That national magazine that makes a great point of reporting inaccuracies in other publications had a field day of misinformation in a single paragraph commenting on the Martin Scott-Carlton Alsop divorce. They spelled his name "Carlton" (it's Carleton). They called him a radio producer and is now producing movies for MGM) and wound up by saying he isn't related to columnist Alsop when he is his cousin. Only thoroughness correctly stated fact was that Martha Scott is in Las Vegas.

HOLLYWOOD IN SHORTS: After backing and filling for a couple of years, Geraldine Fitzgerald finally takes off in 10 days to divorce Edwin Lindsey-Hogg in Reno, or Talone, or wherever she can get reservations: although July 4 is the wedding date set by model man, Harry Conover to his cover girl, Candy Jones, a change in plans switches the locale from Ohio to Hamilton, Canada. He's set to judge a beauty contest there. SCOME way for a gal to spend a honeymoon with her husband looking at other beauties all the time; now that Tommy Dorsey is tres anxious to get a divorce over with, Pat Dane has slowed down to a walk and taking her sweet time about it; Eddier Williams and Ben Gage are expecting a little swim champ next winter; Martha Linden, the beauty who hasn't made a movie in too long, goes east for the femme lead opposite Jean Pierre Aumont in "Design for Living," summer stock presentation; Louise Albritton Colingwood is denying baby rumors in New York. If she can get the right thing she wants to do a Broadway show; Joe Yrigoyen, the stunt man who applied inside secrets on Harriet Parsons' radio show, got a movie

Ceremony Will Be Performed in Emmanuel Episcopal Church

Miss Eleanor MacDonald Bradford, daughter of Mrs. Samuel Bradford, 415 Washington street, and the late Mr. Bradford, and Wilton Holmes Syckes, son of Mrs. Lua Syckes, the Dingle, and the late Dr. Syckes, will be married Thursday, July 18, in Emmanuel Episcopal church.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Allegany high school, class of 1945. She was a member of the Girls' Hi-Y club and served as an officer in the organization for several years. She also played in the school orchestra and was a member of the Choral club.

Mr. Syckes is also a graduate of Allegany high school. He entered the navy in 1943 and served aboard the USS Enterprise as a member of the ship's band. He was on the Enterprise during the battles of Iwo Jima, Okinawa and Tokyo. He was received into the United States Navy Band January 16, and holds the commendation for meritorious service from the commanding officer of the Enterprise.

Dr. and Mrs. Edward J. Sokolski, Stamford, Conn., are guests of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Sokolski, 514 Central avenue, and Mrs. Sokolski will reside with her parents while Dr. Sokolski is on duty with the Army Medical Corps, in Tugus, Me.

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Benson visited the latter's parents Mr. and Mrs. Andrew S. Roemer, 125 North Central street, and to their future home in Wilkinsburg, Pa., following their wedding trip to Eastern cities. Mrs. Benson is the former Miss Betty Roemer.

Mrs. Frank Crawford, 1109 Michigan avenue, who underwent a major operation at Memorial Hospital, is convalescing.

The Rev. Dr. Walter M. Michael officiated. Mrs. Eva Shanholz, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, and Mrs. Lena George and Mrs. Christine McCullough were bridesmaids. Allen Shroyer served as best man. Traditional wedding marches were played by Miss Betty Miller.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bridegroom's parents.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

Mistrust Opens Way to Jealousy, Miss Fairfax Says

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Two letters just received from the same town give every indication of referring to the same situation. One is from a young man, and the other quite evidently from his girl. Possibly they got together and each agreed to write me his side of the story.

Following the "ladies first" principle, let's begin with the girl's letter:

"I am very much in love with a young man. We have been going together for six months. He tells me he loves me very much, but doesn't always show it."

"He used to be the sweetest guy in the world, but for the past week he's been a completely different person. But he says he still loves me."

"I'm making me very unhappy, continually accusing me of not loving him and questioning my sincerity in everything I do or say. I try to be patient and hope it will pass, but it doesn't. We are talking of breaking up. Please give me your advice."

"Dear Miss Fairfax: "I am a young man who is very much in love with this girl, and she says she loves me too."

"But it seems as though we don't get along and yet we agree on everything. She doesn't believe that I trust her, because she is actually breaking up. I would appreciate your advice."

Offhand, I'd say that if these two—or any other young couple have difficulty getting along even before they're married, they're likely to find the going very tough later. This is especially true if there be any question as to complete confidence between them. For mistrust opens the way to all sorts of disastrous jealousies and suspicions.

The first is that she may actually have given him cause for his doubt, in which case I think he would do well to think things over very carefully indeed before asking her to be his wife. The second is that he may be the neurotic type of personality which finds fault, criticizes and suspects even though there is not the slightest basis for any of it. And in such a case, this girl would unquestionably be letting herself in for a very poor time if she took him on as a husband.

But there is still that third possible cause of friction, and that is, as in a temporary phase of irritability due to some purely physical cause such as fatigue, lowered vitality, indigestion, eyestrain or even a cold. After all, the girl herself says it has only been "the past week" that she has noticed this change in her boyfriend, and "the sweetest guy in the world" could hardly have a complete change of character overnight. I would suggest that before making a definite decision to break up, as they say they are talking of doing, they both catch up on their sleep. Things look very different sometimes, when you're rested.

Of course there is always the possibility that these two may be temperamentally incompatible, and it's just beginning to show. If this is true, they'd better come to agreement on one thing, at least, which would be to call it a day right now, so far as any serious plans for matrimony are concerned.

Meat Should Not Be Eaten "Rare," Doctor Declares

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.
We can pity the poor caveman when we remember that he ate all of his food raw or, if our sympathies don't extend so far, we can at least congratulate ourselves that we eat cooked foods. Only contrast a hunk of raw meat with a well-browned roast, and you'll feel a glow of gratitude that with the passing of the ages man learned how to use heat to make his food not only more digestible but more delicious.

The art of cookery, which makes a pleasure of necessity, grew up in happenstance fashion in the kitchens of the world. Thus, it is a little strange that traditional methods of food preparation should often be sound from a health standpoint. Just the same it's true.

Well-Cooked Pork
Pork, for example, should always be well-cooked and it usually is, even where people have nothing more than the taste-test to guide them. Few people would like underdone veal and that's a good thing too, because to be digestible this meat should be thoroughly cooked.

When it comes to beef, however, there's a different story, for beef, which is so often preferred rare, may occasionally be infested with a tap

Charles Town Editor Terms Pearson's Suit "Utterly Ridiculous"

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va., June 30 (AP)—R. J. Funkhouser, industrialist, editor and publisher of the "Jefferson Republican," said today he $100,000 libel suit brought against him by Drew Pearson, Washington columnist, was "utterly ridiculous."

H. L. Snyder, Charleston attorney, said Friday he had mailed papers in the case to the Jefferson county circuit clerk at Charles Town naming Funkhouser as editor in chief and the Blakeley Corporation as publisher of the "Jefferson Republican."

The declaration in the case said the paper made reference to a personal appearance by Pearson in an article that injured Pearson's reputation and impaired the value of his services as a public speaker, a newspaper columnist and radio commentator.

Gandhi Escapes Injury

POONA, India, June 30 (AP)—Mohandas K. Gandhi escaped injury today when his special train crashed into boulders which, he intimated, had been placed on the track in a deliberate attempt against his life.

The accident occurred 58 miles from Poona. The spiritual leader of the Congress party was en route home from New Delhi, where he had conferred with members of the British cabinet mission on their proposals for Indian independence. Although there was a severe jolt, no one in Gandhi's party was injured. The engine was damaged, and the train was six and a half hours late in reaching Poona.

The government will assume all costs incident to burial in American military cemeteries abroad, or in national cemeteries in the United States. The government also assumes all costs incident to delivery of remains to the city or town designated, and will pay up to $50 toward expenses of local interment. When bodies arrive in this country, next of kin will receive telegraphic notice of arrival, and will also be notified later by telegram of the dispatch of the casket to the designated place, means of transportation used, and expected time of arrival there.

All next of kin of men listed as killed in action or died in service will eventually be notified. Mrs. Dean said yesterday and inquiries to the War department or to the Red Cross are futile at present.

The task is an enormous one, and the return of all the bodies of American war dead, will probably take several years. Those interested should await arrival of notification and disposition forms before taking any voluntary action, Mrs. Dean explains.

Tax Experts Say Snyder Can Save U.S. Five Billion Dollars by Simple Move

By DREW PEARSON

Washington, July 1.—The nation's new money chief, John Snyder, now has a chance to show that he is not the bottom pal of big business that his critics say he is. Tax experts claim he can save four or five billion dollars for the United States Treasury with one simple move.

Some Contraption

A FORMER MONTANA COWPUNCHER, who is also described as a poet, is in possession of a most unusual contraption. Press stories say that it is equipped with a radio receiver and antenna, a stainless steel strongbox, a mileage indicator, small generator for a headlight, a compass, a camera and a spare tire. The cowpoke has so bedecked his wheebarrow with these scientific marvels in preparation for pushing the one-wheeled around the world.

The obvious conclusion is that the more man learns, the dumber he becomes. The cow-poet says he got the idea from a picture on a calendar. This is one thing, at least, that students of the juvenile mind cannot blame on comic strips or funny books.

D. Lindly Sloan says an old-fashioned father is one who is not fretted because the oldest boy swiped his best ties and shoes and had no worries of Street Sixteen, copping his shirts and blue jeans.

Bill Gunter says with the price of butter going up again, Bossy's "Moo! Moo!" is beginning to sound like "More! More!"

Live Boldly

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS
The forthright character is always respected. He who expresses himself in words and actions, boldly and openly is like the artist who is not afraid to exhibit himself in the thing which he creates.

We daily paint ourselves into silent and invisible portraits that show about us, but all too rarely interpret. But there is the picture just the same. No false strokes. The best and worst revealed.

It is not easy to live boldly and openly, for there are so many conventional and conventional ways strewn about us, tempting us to abide by them, thus smothering our right to an inborn personality, alive and full of hunger for honest expression.

The genius may be said to be always a sufferer, for he is always misunderstood by the many, though much excuse is offered in his behalf. Yet he invites no apologies. He only asks to live boldly and openly, being himself, for he is primarily creative. It is essential to inquire of the masterful painter where he got his paint, or where he purchased his brush, so long as the colors and the soul of the artist are made to live upon his canvas. Is it not sufficient to accept the result?

We can never pay too great homage to courage, patience, and bold thinking. What have truth and honest action to do with consistency? William H. Seward once stated that there was a "higher law than the Constitution." So to him who lives boldly and openly there are self-made laws, bequeathed him at birth, that remain as an inward guide for thought and conduct, surpassing all other laws.

Greatness is no accident. It is an evolution, wrought by many a personal revolution! And the process is the same, whether enacted through an individual or a nation. "Righteousness exalteth a nation," as has been written. Likewise boldness and openness of mind nobly exalt character.

Do not be afraid! That is the inward command of every bold and aspiring human being. And why should anyone of us be afraid? Are we not, as an entity, unique? Are we not a pattern, from which we hope to make some sort of perfection? God had a purpose in creating this earth with endless beauty. It suggests His invitation for each of us to live boldly, openly—and happily.

Peace Prospects
FOREIGN MINISTERS of the Big Four, in their second Paris conference, are making some headway with peace for Italy but back of that are the grinning specters of southeastern Europe and Germany. These are the keystones of a solid European peace. Failure there will be a hard blow to the prospect of restoring international stability.

Russia demands a preponderant position in the Balkans. Moscow proposes that Bulgaria have a large Black Sea fleet, but Britain and America, reluctant to see the balance of power in southeastern Europe

Washington, July 1.—The nation's new money chief, John Snyder, now has a chance to show that he is not the bottom pal of big business that his critics say he is. Tax experts claim he can save four or five billion dollars for the United States Treasury with one simple move.

Julius J. Gray, in the current tax legislation is the continuance of the carry-back of unused excess profits credit. The Senate Finance committee, always friendly to big business, not always friendly to the excess profits tax last year, but retained carryback refunds. This permitted corporations whose current earnings do not proportionately match their 1936-1939 earnings, to claim adjustments in their 1946 tax payments.

This is one reason some firms didn't worry too much about prolonged strikes. General Motors alone will probably hit the Treasury for a refund of $6 million dollars. To head off this drain on the Treasury, Rep. Cleveland Bailey, of Clarksville, W. Va., Democrat, introduced a bill last January to repeal the carry-back provisions. On January 23, the House Ways and Means committee asked the Treasury for a report.

However, no report is forthcoming yet. Nor is there any sign that it will be made by the time Congress adjourns. Somebody in the Treasury has been sitting on his hands.

Last week impatient Rep. Wilbur Mills of Arkansas, Democrat, proposed that Congress act independently, without waiting for the Treasury report. He pointed out that large credits can be claimed by corporations which actually make more money this year than they did in any of the years from 1936 to 1939, simply because their capital investment is now larger.

Mills charged that many large companies are taking advantage of this loophole, and as a result the taxpayer foots the Bill for the expansion of private industries. He also listed a long series of "abuses and transactions which will no doubt create carry-back refunds or tax credits."

Congressional tax experts think there is a chance that repeal of the carry-back provision might be put through this year—if the Treasury sends up a strong report recommending it. That is where new Secretary of the Treasury Snyder has his big chance to show he is not always the pal of big business.

guests at a stag dinner attended by Hurley, Senator Burt Wheeler, ex-Attorney General Homer Cummings and Warren Lee Pierson some time ago. They are still talking about it.

Nothing happened until the middle of the meal, when Pierson, former head of the Export-Import Bank, now president of the Radio Corporation of America, made a grinning reference to the old mule skinner in their midst. Hurley, who once drove a mule in an Oklahoma mine and usually goes out of the way to boast about it, suddenly dropped his knife and fork and bellowed:

"I heard that crack you made about me and I'm getting tired of your insinuations. Everybody knows what you think of me. Sure, I used to be a mule skinner. Do you want to make something of it?"

The nonplussed Pierson tried to explain that he meant nothing by the remark, but was only "kidding." He thought for a moment that Hurley had mistaken him for a newspaper columnist by the same name. Hurley, however, was spilling for action and refused to accept the apology. Jumping to his feet, he began to peel off his coat.

"I've taken all I'm going to from you. Come on outside and we'll settle this thing right now."

By this time, Pierson's own dander was up.

"I don't know what's eating you, but if you want to fight I'll be glad to accommodate you," he shot back.

Both men had started for the door when friends intervened and induced them to return to their seats.

"I'm the moderator here," soothed Homer Cummings. "Let's have order."

CPA's Housing Headaches
Having cracked down rather vigorously on Civilian Production Administrator Small and the race tracks and roller coasters built at the expense of veterans housing. It is only fair to describe some of the headaches Mr. Small faces. This is an attempt to tell the other side of the story.

Jack Small came out of the Navy to take over the job of Civilian Production Administrator at a time when many economists were predicting a post-war depression and wide-scale unemployment. In fact some set the figures as high as 10,000,000 unemployed by Christmas.

The proposed cure for unemployment was construction. To that end all construction controls were removed and the green light given to all sorts of building.

Shortly after this, the unemployment estimates proved to be wrong, and instead of a surplus of labor there was a shortage of almost everything—from labor to 10-penny nails.

Result was that by the time Congress and top officials belatedly got around to worrying about veterans housing, all sorts of other construction — some of it essential, some decidedly not — was already under way. Of course, it's generally overlooked now, but some of the old Roosevelt brain-trusters like Bob Nathan and Leon Henderson long had been warning about the housing shortage — to no avail. John Snyder and other top people — including Jack Small — paid no attention to them.

So it was not until March 26 of this year that Small finally issued his stop-order against further unessential construction.

Race Tracks Get Busy
At that time Small lacked both the personnel and the money to regulate future construction. He wired former War Production Board men all over the country asking them to come back. Meanwhile word leaked out a day or two before March 26 that all non-essential building was to be stopped, and contractors rushed to put a "piece of steel in the ground" so they could say construction already had started.

One big question since then has been to decide whether jobs already started should be stopped. CPA's Small and his staff have found that stopping sometimes would create hardship, sometimes bankruptcy. That is one reason why the race tracks and much unessential construction is continuing.

Some people, including this writer, don't believe the CPA staff has been tough enough, but obviously it's a difficult problem. And whether right or wrong in the past, it is only fair to point out that his staff has been doing an increasingly good job recently. Housing War Wilson Wyatt and others now pay tribute to the CPA boss for throwing everything he has into the veterans building program.

Tax Experts Say Snyder Can Save U.S. Five Billion Dollars by Simple Move

By DEWEY FEARSON

Washington—The nation's new money chief, John Snyder, now has a chance to show that he is not the boomer of big business that his critics say he is. Tax experts claim he can save four or five billion dollars for the United States Treasury by one simple move.

Julius G. Brown, a prominent tax expert, says Snyder's move would be to carry back the unused excess profits tax credit for 1939-1945. The Senate Finance Committee, always friendly to big business, not only knocked out the excess profits tax last year, but retained carryback refunds. This permits corporations whose current earnings do not proportionately match their 1939-1945 earnings, to claim adjustments in their 1946 tax payments.

This is one reason some firms didn't worry too much about prolonged strikes. General Motors alone will probably hit the Treasury for a refund of 80 million dollars. To head off this drain on the Treasury, Rep. Cleveland Bailey, of Clarksville, W. Va., Democrat, introduced a bill last January to repeal the carry-back provisions. On January 22 the House Ways and Means committee asked the Treasury for a report.

However, no report is forthcoming yet. Nor is there any sign that it will be made by the time Congress adjourns. Somebody in the Treasury has been sitting on his hands.

Last week impatient Rep. Wilbur Mills, of Arkansas, Democrat, proposed that Congress act independently, without waiting for the Treasury report. He pointed out that large credits can be claimed by corporations which actually make more money this year than they did in any of the years from 1939 to 1945, simply because their capital investment is now larger.

Mills charged that many large companies are taking advantage of this loophole, and as a result the taxpayer foots the Bill for the expansion of private industries. He also listed a long series of "abuses and transactions which will not do but be resorted to in order to create carry-back refunds or tax credits."

Congressional tax experts think there is a chance that repeal of the carry-back provision might be put through this year—if the Treasury sends up a strong report recommending it. That is where new Secretary of the Treasury Snyder has his big chance to show he is not always the pal of big business.

Whether Snyder and Bevin will be forced to carry out their threat of by-passing Russia through a peace conference of 21 nations is to be seen. Russia has given no reason as yet to hope that she will change her uncompromising attitude.

Bill Gunter says with the price of butter going up again, Boey's "Moo! Moo!" is beginning to sound like "More! More!"

But the legislators would do well to keep in mind the wise advice which Chairman Doughton of the ways and means committee gave them in presenting the legislation. "If we are to retain the confidence of the people," he told them, "we must cut spending and reduce the debt."

He might have added that taxpayers will have little patience with a continuance of needless spending which bars the way to a reduction of the intolerable tax burden.

Closing Food Gap

CROP FAILURE as well as the ravages of war are basic causes of the present acute world food shortage. The great cereal producing regions of India and China were reduced to the import stage because of seasonal failure of wheat and rice. The situation was further complicated by what was feared to be a similar crop failure in Argentina, also one of the world's bread baskets.

Following his tour of Europe and Asia to gather facts on the food crisis for President Truman, Herbert Hoover was sent to Latin America to investigate conditions there. His report is a surprisingly encouraging one. Particularly important is his statement that Argentina "suffered a partial crop failure, and her surplus this year, while considerable, is less than normal. Argentina has undertaken to provide for the major needs of most of the importing South American countries during the critical months, thus greatly relieving the drain upon Canada and the United States."

Mr. Hoover's mission was a most successful one in that he was able to add in the coordination of an almost unanimous Latin American desire to have a share in relieving the world hunger crisis.

Peace Prospects

FOREIGN MINISTERS of the Big Four, in their second Paris conference, are making some headway with peace for Italy but back of that are the grim specters of southeastern Europe and Germany. These are the keystones of a solid European peace. Failure there will be a hard blow to the prospect of restoring international stability.

Russia demands a preponderant position in the Balkans. Moscow proposes that Bulgaria, a large Black Sea fleet, but Britain and America, reluctant to see the balance of power in southeastern Europe radically shifted at the expense of Greece and Turkey, oppose the plan. Russia also opposes freedom of commerce on the Danube.

Whether Snyder and Bevin will be forced to carry out their threat of by-passing Russia through a peace conference of 21 nations is to be seen. Russia has given no reason as yet to hope that she will change her uncompromising attitude.

Young Waitress Drowns in River Near Shallmar

Mrs. Betty Jane Sanders
Slips from Rock while Watching Friends Swim

SHALLMAR, June 30—A young restaurant waitress, who had been living in Blaine for several months, drowned Thursday in the Potomac river near here when she slipped from a rock while picnicking with relatives.

Formerly of Morgantown, W. Va., the body of Mrs. Betty Jane Sanders, 21, was recovered about 15 minutes after she slipped into deep water where she was sitting on a big rock watching other members of the party swim. Police said she couldn't swim.

Witnesses said Sally Stonebraker, a cousin, grabbed hold of Mrs. Sanders but was unable to hold her, when the victim began to pull her in.

Howard Marshall, a mine superintendent at Shallmar, and several men took the body from the river about 15 minutes later when it had drifted into more shallow water.

Members of the Kitzmiller Fire Department used a resuscitator for almost an hour in efforts to revive the young waitress. But Dr. Ralph Galandrella, Kitzmiller, pronounced the woman dead when they failed.

According to police Mrs. Sanders, formerly lived in Morgantown, W. Va., but became separated from her husband and was living in Blaine with her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. George Stonebraker, and working at Bob's restaurant.

Mrs. Sanders was born at Mt. Lake Park, May 13, 1925, a daughter of Mrs. Anna Mary Harvey Marvel, Morgantown, and the late Robert Charles Marvel. Besides her husband and mother she is survived by two brothers, Russell

ANTI-SEMITISM IN SCHOOLS

Recently I told you the true story of a young American girl. A fine, ambitious youngster from a cultured home. A girl who seemed to have everything which we prize most highly in our way of life... brains, beauty, charm, high standing... and that normal desire for friendliness which all healthy young humans possess.

Yet, in spite of all these assets, no first class college in America will admit that girl into any of its leading sororities.

Why not?

Because she is a Jewess.

Her parents and their parents before them were born in America. For generations they have contributed generously to American art, science and that normal desire for friendliness which all healthy young humans possess. They have carried their full share of all civic responsibilities. But because they are of Hebrew blood, their daughter is denied a place in the social activities of our leading campuses.

I am not a Jewess nor was my article influenced by any Jewish organization. I wrote it simply because I am an American and intensely proud of my American heritage and I consider this condition to be one of the foulest blot on our status as a civilized democracy.

There is of course no such thing as a real democracy in America or anywhere else. The strong and the money will always come out on top of the heap in any nation. This fact is a cherished part of our own tradition as witness Lincoln and his rail splitting. Neither poverty nor obscurity could keep him down. Which is probably a very good thing. We need forceful leaders—men who can rise above circumstances.

However, even if we haven't a real democracy, we do treasure the tradition and one of our proudest boasts is that every American youngster gets a fair and equal break. Which shows just how far a people can go when they decide to kid themselves, as this girl's story proves.

Regardless of what may happen after graduation, we have no right to permit such unfair and anti-democratic practices in our public schools. Which discrimination makes a mockery of our whole educational system and a farce of our constitution.

As this goes to press, I have received 3,795 replies to my previous article, both pro and con. I have been called every name in our lively vocabulary including those usually reserved for back fences. I have also been gratefully praised.

LISTEN WORLD

By ELSIE ROBINSON
(Registered U.S. Patent Office)

ANTI-SEMITISM IN SCHOOLS

Recently I told you the true story of a young American girl. A fine, ambitious youngster from a cultured home. A girl who seemed to have everything which we prize most highly in our way of life. Brains, beauty, charm, high standing, and that normal desire for friendliness which all healthy young humans possess.

Yet, in spite of all these assets, no first class college in America will admit that girl into any of its leading societies.

Why not?

Because she is a Jewess.

Her parents and their parents before them were born in America. For generations they have contributed generously to American art, science and charity. Their tax money helps support the schools which this girl has attended. They have carried their full share of all civic responsibilities. But because they are of Hebrew blood, their daughter is denied a place in the social activities of our leading campuses.

I am not a Jewess nor was my article influenced by any Jewish organization. I wrote it simply because I am an American and intensely proud of my American heritage and I consider this condition to be one of the foulest blot on our status as a civilized democracy.

There is of course no such thing as a real democracy in America or anywhere else. The strong and the ruthless, the powerful and the wealthy will always come out on top of the heap in any nation. This fact is a cherished part of our own tradition as witness Lincoln and his rail splitting. Neither poverty nor obscurity could keep him down. Which is probably a very good thing. We need forceful leaders—men who can rise above circumstances.

However, even if we haven't a real democracy, we do treasure the tradition and one of our proudest boasts is that every American youngster gets a fair and equal break. Which shows just how far a people can go when they decide to kid themselves, as this girl's story proves.

Regardless of what may happen after graduation, we have no right to permit such unfair and anti-democratic practices in our public schools. Such discrimination makes a mockery of our whole educational system and a farce of our constitution.

As this goes to press, I have received 3,795 replies to my previous article, both pro and con. I have been called every name in our lively vocabulary including those usually reserved for back fences. I have also been gratefully praised.

But whether I am spit upon or applauded I shall continue to regard this situation as one of the most corrupt in America and an everlasting disgrace to every citizen.

At best, I have but K'dile use for fraternities or sororities. I know from long and tragic observation what misery they cause amongst underprivileged children and what stupidity and snobbishness they develop in the elect few.

The whole fraternal system is based on a false premise. Save in isolated cases, young people are not chosen because of their own merit or intelligence. They are selected because of Papa's money or Mama's social position. So before they even enter adult life they enjoy privileges which are as vicious as any program ever outlined by Nazi or Fascist.

FROM THE MOMENT THEY ARE BID THEY THUMB THEIR NOSES AT ALL THE PRINCIPLES FOR WHICH AMERICANS HAVE LIVED AND DIED AND THEY DO THIS WITH OUR PERMISSION AND ENTHUSIASTIC ENDORSEMENT.

Not these many reasons I heartily endorse one suggestion which has come from many sources—namely—

NO SORORITIES OR FRATERNITIES SHOULD BE PERMITTED IN ANY STATE COLLEGE. LET US ON THESE TAX SUPPORTED CAMPUSES AT LEAST PRACTICE THAT EQUALITY OF WHICH WE SO OFTEN BOAST.

Peter G. Charuhas' Boy Is Injured Body Is Found Hanging in Hall When Hit by Car Seven Other Persons Are Treated following Accidents

Former Owner of Nu-Way Shoe Store Is Believed Suicide

Peter G. Charuhas, 67, well known local business man, was found dead at 8 o'clock last night, at the home of his brother, Christ G. Charuhas, 323 North Centre street, where he had been residing for several months.

According to Christ Charuhas, his brother evidently took his own life by hanging from the railing of the stairway, sometime yesterday afternoon while the family was visiting in Altoona, Pa.

Christ said the family returned home at 8 p. m. and noticed the back door of the house, which opens onto a side porch, standing open. A place set at the table for Peter Charuhas by Christ's wife, and a meal she had prepared and left on the stove, were undisturbed.

The family began looking for Peter Charuhas, and Christ told his 12-year-old daughter Stella C. Charuhas "go upstairs and see if Uncle Pete is there."

As the child went through the living room door and switched on an overhead electric light, she saw the body of her uncle hanging along the stairway. She began screaming, and her father ran to her side and also saw his brother's body.

Police were notified and Officer J. Carl Stouffer took charge. Dr. H. V. Downing, acting deputy medical examiner, was also summoned. He pronounced the man dead, and expressed the opinion he had been dead about three hours.

Members of the family said Peter Charuhas had been in ill health for more than six months. Last Christmas day, he suffered a severe heart attack and was taken to Allegheny hospital where he remained a patient until February 9, when he went to reside with the brother, Christ. Since then he has been inactive, but took a walk occasionally, and spent most of his time reading, and since the weather was warm, sat on the porch.

Christ said he last talked to his brother last night, when they discussed today's trip to Altoona. Peter told Christ "go ahead, I'll be all right." He had not given any intimation of feeling any worse than usual and did not seem depressed, although Christ recalled that he complained of having chills last night while they were talking.

Last Seen Yesterday

Charuhas was last seen about 1 p. m. yesterday sitting on the side porch. The investigation by authorities and members of the family indicated he had gone to his room on the second floor, changed from his street clothes to pajamas and put on his bath robe and slippers. He had evidently picked up several feet of rope from the back porch, which had been used in the garden for tying tomato plants, and carried it with him.

The rope was tied to the banisters in the upstairs hallway, and the other end looped around the man's neck, around which he had also placed a large bath towel.

After slipping on the eighth step, where he had apparently stepped out of them when he climbed over the railing of the stairway and let go.

Peter Charuhas was one of fifteen children. His father George Charuhas had died at the age of 93, ten days after the Nazis were on Greece. His mother died in 1933. He made a trip to Greece in 1931 to see his aged parents, and was gone about six months. That was his only visit back home after leaving Greece at the age of 11.

He came to Cumberland about 1907 after being engaged in the fruit business in Washington, D. C., and restaurant and confectionery business in Staunton, Va. His first business venture here was the old Plaza hotel and restaurant, located on the present site of Sears Roebuck and Company's Baltimore street store. At one time he also operated LaVale Inn, here.

Later he purchased and operated together with his brother Christ, the news stand and shoe shine parlor at the corner of Baltimore and Liberty streets. In recent years he was owner of the Nu-Way Shoe Builders on Baltimore street, but on November 10, 1944, he sold the business to Christ Charuhas and Peter Chakras. Since then he had been retired.

Cumberland K. of C. Plans Third Degree To Mark Anniversary

The Cumberland Council No. 586, Knights of Columbus, will celebrate the 45th anniversary of its founding July 14 by exemplifying the third degree in 586, Peter and Paul, Fayette street, council officials announced last night.

The council was formed July 14, 1901, and has been active in this city ever since.

About 80 first degree members of the council and some from councils of nearby cities will be invited into the third degree. First degree members of the local council will receive instructions from the finance officer immediately.

Council officials estimated that approximately 80 first degree members will take part in the anniversary celebration and degree work.

The committee in charge of the exemplification is Robert A. Davis, chairman; Edward A. Cosgrove, grand knight; J. Paul Nove, deputy grand knight; Patrick Creggan, Gormer Kelly, James E. Browning, Frank A. Wolfhope, Thomas Simon, Norman Chirion, Henry Wolf, and Sylvester A. Shirliff.

Motorist Posts Bond

After being confined to the city jail for more than six hours, on two state motor law charges, C. A. Appel, of West First street, was released under bond of $12,500, Saturday evening.

He will be tried in trial magistrates court today, police said.

Officer L. H. Chambers arrested Appel on Oldtown road, and said the man was driving in a "weaving manner."

INSPECTOR TAKES OVER—Yesterday afternoon, an audit of records was made at the Cumberland post office by a group of post office inspectors, as Postmaster James C. Shriver, Assistant Postmaster James Webster and Superintendent of Mails Maurice Robinette, went into retirement. Seated at the postmaster's desk is F. E. Wright of Washington, D. C., post office inspector temporarily in charge of the post office. Left to right are K. E. Moyer, Washington, D. C. post office inspector; James Webster, retiring assistant postmaster; Thomas B. Cumisky, local post office inspector; C. F. Chatto, another Washington, D. C. post office inspector; James C. Shriver, retiring postmaster, and G. H. Reis, post office inspector of Clarksburg, W. Va. Following the checking of records, Wright officially assumed the duties of postmaster and the retirement became official. Robinette, who resigned simultaneously with Shriver and Webster was not present when the picture was taken.

Kelly Tire Plant Closes To Give Workers Vacation

Those Not Eligible for Pay Can Claim Jobless Insurance

The Kelly-Springfield Tire Company plant will be closed all this week, beginning today, to enable about 1,500 eligible employees to take a week's vacation. Only about 400 maintenance, engineering and power house workers remain on duty, plant officials said last night.

Under an agreement with the union, plant employees are entitled to one week's vacation each if they have less than five years' service and two weeks if they have more than five years. This is the first time the local tire plant has closed to allow time for vacations, although the practice, according to plant officials, has been followed elsewhere for some time.

With the plant shut-down, there are some employees who are not entitled to vacations with pay, and these also will be idle.

According to Francis A. Kenney, senior claims examiner of the Cumberland office, Maryland Unemployment Compensation Board, some employees are eligible for unemployment compensation. He suggests that they file claims immediately.

About 85 per cent of the plant personnel is eligible for a week's vacation, plant officials declare, and about 800 to 1,000 are eligible for the second week. This second week will be handled at a later date, it is claimed, and the plant will probably not be closed a second time.

Employees who are eligible for and do not take the second week will receive vacation pay instead.

Letters will be sent to next of kin by the service departments asking them to state their wishes about final burial. With these letters, Mrs. Dean said, a pamphlet of information will be enclosed, as well as a form to be filled out by the next of kin. This form should be returned in 30 days, and the Red Cross will assist anyone who wishes help in completing the forms.

Letters will not be received by all next of kin at the same time, but will be mailed as records in various overseas cemeteries are verified. No letters will be sent until positive verification has been made.

If the next of kin has moved, the service department concerned should be notified. The Red Cross will also furnish help in filing this notification.

The War department points out that final disposition of any body obviously involves only those bodies which have been recovered and are buried in either temporary military cemeteries or isolated graves. Thousands died whose bodies are not recoverable.

Thousands of burials are yet to be located or reported. The work of identifying the unknown dead continues. No case is officially closed even though there seems no possible solution.

Plans contemplate the return of all unknown dead for burial in national cemeteries.

Four options offered

While the War department faces the fact that few if any bodies can be returned for several months, the first inquiries to next of kin will be mailed within the next few weeks. The following options to the families are offered:

1. Interment in a permanent American military cemetery overseas. The establishment of permanent cemeteries in the European and Philippine areas is contemplated, if justified by the number of requests.

Coal Mines Face Shut-down Due To Car Shortage

A number of nearby West Virginia coal mines are expected to be closed this week, due to a shortage of railroad cars for shipping coal. Along the Baltimore and Ohio railroad particularly, the car situation has grown steadily worse, mine operators assert.

Since Thursday, the Fourth of July, is a holiday, some of the mine operators declared that a shut-down for the last three days of the week may enable the railroad to "catch up" with an adequate supply of coal hoppers. Some mines will be closed all week, it was said.

In the Tunnel and Fairmont areas, hundreds of miners have been thrown out of work in recent weeks, after mines were forced to close by the car shortage. Railroad officials said the shortage, which started early this month, was caused by the fact that many loaded cars were shipped to distant points after the two-month mine strike was ended, and the empties have not completed the circuit back to this section.

The Northern West Virginia Coal Association at Fairmont reported that more than 20,000 miners were affected last week by mine shut-downs and 200,000 tons of coal lost, due to the lack of coal hoppers.

The Fairmont Times charged that the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad and other lines in southern West Virginia "have been getting plenty of cars" and asserted the B. & O. failed to make preparations for the demand and had borrowed cars during the war from other lines, but made no provision for the increase in strip mining and the fact that other companies recalled their cars after the war ended.

Kelly Tire Plant Closes To Give Workers Vacation

Those Not Eligible for Pay Can Claim Jobless Insurance

The Kelly-Springfield Tire Company plant will be closed all this week beginning today, to enable about 1,500 eligible employees to take a week's vacation. Only about 400 maintenance, engineering and power house workers remain on duty, plant officials said last night.

Under an agreement with the union, plant employees are entitled to one week's vacation each if they have less than five years' service and two weeks if they have more than five years. This is the first time the local tire plant has closed to allow time for vacations, although the practice, according to plant officials, has been followed elsewhere for some time.

With the plant shut-down, there are some employees who are not entitled to vacations with pay, and these also will be idle.

According to Francis A. Kenney, senior claims examiner of the United States office, Maryland Unemployment Compensation Board, such employees are eligible for unemployment compensation. He suggests that they file claims immediately, as no waiting period is necessary.

About 85 per cent of the plant personnel is eligible for a week's vacation, plant officials declare, and about 800 to 1,000 are eligible for the second week. This second week will be handled at a later date, it was said, and the plant will probably not be closed a second time.

Employees who are eligible for and do not take the second week will receive vacation pay instead.

End of OPA May Result in Prices Increasing Here

With OPA price and rent control measures inoperative as of midnight last night, as a result of congressional failure to extend price control laws which would meet with presidential approval, many persons here fear an immediate increase in the price of many commodities and raise in rent.

Union leaders call attention to the fact that most local contracts carry provisions for reopening wage agreements in the event of price increases. Such wage clauses are embodied in contracts with the major and many of the smaller industries here.

Wage increases have been made here in the past few months, but workers and consumers generally are fearful that cost of living, soaring upward without government control, will eat up the increases and "take home pay" will be insufficient to keep the living standard at its current level.

According to the chamber of commerce monthly report sent to members Saturday the cost of a market basket of food was $4.75 in May 1945, and in May this year the same cost $5.90, an increase of about 25 per cent.

Following the President's radio talk Saturday night, in which he explained why he had vetoed the new OPA bill and appealed to OPA workers to stay on their jobs, it was indicated here that all OPA personnel would report for work as usual today.

Car Is Recovered

Maryland State Police reported Saturday afternoon that the 1933 Chevrolet coach of the Cumberland Electric Company, 137 Virginia avenue, reported stolen from South Centre street June 22, was recovered in Hancock.

Return of War Dead to States Expected To Begin This Year

The United States government, through the various branches of the armed forces, is making preparations to return bodies of over a quarter of a million American men who were killed or died on foreign soil during World War II.

According to Mrs. Louise C. Dean, home service secretary of the local Red Cross chapter, many survivors of 335 county men who paid the supreme sacrifice during the war have made inquiry as to the procedure to be followed in having bodies of their soldier dead brought home.

Mrs. Dean said yesterday that she has had no specific information until this week, but now has an official communication of details and procedure.

In the first place, it is explained, no bodies will be brought home until about the end of this year due to the shortage of caskets. The first bodies returned will be from cemeteries in Hawaii and Belgium, which have already been fully checked and rechecked.

Under the act of May 16, 1946, Public Law 383, provision is made for the return home and for burial, in accordance with the wishes of the next of kin, of the remains of personnel of the armed forces and certain others now buried outside the United States.

The law applies to persons who died on or after September 3, 1939, and were buried on foreign soil. Personnel included besides members of the armed forces are civilian officers and employees of the United States; citizens of the United States serving in the armed forces of any government at war with Germany, Italy or Japan; citizens, the return of whose remains would, in the discretion of the Secretary of War, serve the public interest, and citizens whose homes were in the United States when death was directly attributable to the war.

Red Cross Will Assist

Letters will be sent to next of kin by the service departments asking them to state their wishes about final burial. With these letters, Mrs. Dean said, a pamphlet of information will be enclosed, as well as a form to be filled out by the next of kin. This form should be returned in 30 days, and the Red Cross will assist anyone who wishes help in completing the forms.

Letters will not be received by all next of kin at the same time, but will be mailed as records in various overseas cemeteries are verified. No letters will be sent until positive verification has been made.

If the next of kin has moved, the service department concerned should be notified. The Red Cross will assist anyone who wishes help in filing this notification.

The War department points out that final disposition of any body obviously involves only those bodies which have been recovered and are buried in either temporary military cemeteries or isolated graves. Thousands died whose bodies are not recoverable.

Thousands of burials are yet to be located or reported. The work of identifying the unknown dead continues. No case is officially closed even though there seems no possible solution.

Plans contemplate the return of all unknown dead for burial in national cemeteries.

While the War department faces the fact that few if any bodies can be returned for several months, the first inquiries to next of kin will be mailed within the next few weeks. The following options to the families are offered:

1. Interment in a permanent American military cemetery overseas. The establishment of permanent cemeteries in the European and Philippine areas is contemplated. If justified by the number of requests.

2. Return to the United States and interment in a national cemetery selected by next of kin. Burial in a national cemetery is restricted to remains of members of the armed forces.

3. Return to the United States or any possession or territory, for interment by next of kin in a private cemetery. Shipment will be made to the city or town designated by next of kin.

4. Reinterment in a foreign country where now buried, or return to the country of origin.

Local Woman Is Badly Injured When Hit by Car

Police said yesterday they are still investigating the circumstances which led to the serious injury of a local woman who, they said, apparently was struck by a car on Route 40 at Long Hill early yesterday morning.

The injured woman, Mrs. Isabelle Null, 37, wife of John Null, 33 Clement street, was admitted to Allegheny hospital suffering from abrasions all over the body. Attaches said Mrs. Null complained of pain in the right arm and left thigh. Her condition was "fair" last evening.

According to Lt. James E. Van, who investigated for city police, the accident occurred at the top of Long Hill about 1:45 a. m. yesterday as Frederick William Constable, 20, 491 Baltimore avenue, was traveling east on Route 40.

Constable told Lt. Van that he thought he had run over a dog and continued on for a short distance and then thought he had better return to the scene of the mishap.

Lt. Van said when Constable returned, he saw two men holding a woman and at once realized it was the woman he had run over. Lt. Van added that Constable took the injured woman to the hospital.

Police said the men who stopped and picked up the injured woman were Constable's brother, Alvin E. Constable, and Frank Chamberlain, 308 Cecelia street.

Constable was released pending the outcome of the woman's injuries and further investigation of the case, police said.

Heidelberg Soldier Calls His Mother, Mrs. Mary E. Summers

While most of Cumberland was listening in wonderment to the radio version of the atom bomb test last night, one local woman quietly turned off her radio to carry on a telephone conversation.

The other person on the line was her son, Sgt. Floyd L. Summers, 543 Signal Base Depot Company, Heidelberg, Germany. Mrs. Mary E. Summers, 520 Beall street, said the reception was fine and her son's every word was distinct—something most listeners of the bomb broadcast couldn't admit.

Sgt. Summers, who enlisted in the army for a second three year hitch last March didn't have anything unusual to hear of his mother and sister, Mrs. Elsie Young, who also lives at 520 Beall street.

Mrs. Summers said it was the first time her son has called from Germany, since he returned in March.

During the war Sgt. Summers fought in Africa, Italy, France and Germany. He was discharged in October 1945 and returned to service in March.
